Strategies employed by the Fund during the period under review

During the financial period under review, total portfolio exposure expanded to approximately 155%. While the overall asset allocation remained steady, the portfolio executed a minor rotation, reducing inflation-linked assets in favour of sovereign bonds. The portfolio maintains a balanced structure with 40% invested in cyclical assets (equities, credit and commodities) and 60% in defensive holdings (rates, inflation swaps and long-volatility).

Internally, signals were stable, notably showing reduced volatility estimates for fixed income. Momentum indicators are positive across all cyclical sectors and have strengthened for sovereign bonds, specifically favouring the United States (US) and Australia over Europe and Japan. Macroeconomically, the environment remains 'risk-on,' supported by continued accommodative G10 central bank policies and modest global growth momentum. However, we are noting rising inflationary pressures specifically within the US.

An explanation on the differences in portfolio composition

During the financial period under review, we invested in the Lombard Odier Funds – All Roads, (EUR) I A fund according to the mandate as it provides diversification and exposures to multiple markets and asset classes.

Operational review of the Fund

For the financial period under review, there were no significant changes in the state of affairs of the Fund or circumstances that would materially affect the interest of Unit holders up to the date of this Manager's report.

IV. MARKET REVIEW

During the financial period under review, the global market landscape was defined by an increasingly concentrated, technology-led rally. While 3Q 2025 global earnings exceeded forecasts by 6%, the aggregate numbers hide a sharp regional divide. The reporting period essentially became a "US season", with American tech firms delivering earnings growth above 15%, contrasting sharply with European companies that faced flat sales and anaemic growth.

Despite the equity momentum, the macroeconomic backdrop in the US faces complications. A government shutdown has created a significant "data void", halting the publication of vital labour market statistics. This opacity is particularly concerning given the Federal Reserve's (Fed) recent signalling; the central bank emphasised that a December rate cut is far from certain, challenging the assumptions of a market heavily positioned for monetary easing.

Nevertheless, investor sentiment remains buoyed by massive Capital Expenditure (CapEx) cycles in the tech sector and a supportive decline in global bond yields. Consequently, the growth investment style dominated in October, lifting the NASDAQ Composite Index by 4.7%. In broader assets, commodities performed well—with Gold adding 4%—and the US Dollar (USD) staged a 2% recovery.

V. FUTURE PROSPECTS AND PROPOSED STRATEGIES

Looking forward, we identify two potential market miscalculations. First, the prevailing pessimism regarding the European economy—specifically within the automotive sector—may be overstated; once this negative sentiment is fully absorbed, it could paradoxically create room for positive market surprises. Second, the consensus view that the Fed will implement multiple rate cuts appears fragile given Powell's recent caution, posing a risk to the narrative of declining yields.

However, we do not foresee a shift in market leadership. The productivity gains driven by Artificial Intelligence (AI) remain a powerful engine for earnings. As long as the tech sector continues to deliver profitability metrics that surpass even the most ambitious projections, the current concentration of market performance is likely to continue.

VI. SOFT COMMISSIONS

The Manager may receive soft commissions from brokers/dealers in the form of goods and services such as research materials, data and quotation services incidental to investment management of the Fund and investment related publications. Such soft commissions received are utilised in the investment management of the Fund and are of demonstrable benefit to the Fund and Unit holders and there was no churning of trades.

During the financial period under review, the Fund has not received goods or services by way of soft commissions.

VII. SECURITIES LENDING OR REPURCHASING TRANSACTIONS

No securities lending or repurchase transactions have been carried out during the financial period under review.

VIII. CROSS TRADE TRANSACTIONS

No cross trade transactions have been carried out during the financial period under review.
